A Double Case of Conacience.—Mr.
Whitlosey, the General Agent of the National Monument Society, acknowledges the receipt of a contribution of one hundred dollars, from a clerk in the Second Comptroller's Office, towards the erection of the Monument The money was enclosed and sent to him in a letter, through the post office, anonymously signed, "as a small compensation for services rendered out of elicu hours." The gift was prompted by a conscientious feeling that the clerk was entitled to renumeration. But it seems that the conscience of the clerk would not permit him to apply the meney to his own use: for in the letter, he says;—"Being paid by the Government a sallary for my official services, and believing that the tendency of public officers taking pay from individuals for attending to official business out of office hours, would be corrupting and dangerous. I do not feel at liberty to approtendency of public officers taking pay from individuals for attending to official business out of office hours, would be corrupting and dangerous, I de not feel at liberty to appropriate the money to my own use. I therefore appropriate it to the great and noble purpose of aiding the Society in erecting a montiment to commemorate the distinguished services and cearacter of the Father of his Country."-[Wash Rep.

A merchant who Intely died suddenly, left in his desk a letter written to one of his correspondents. His sagacious clerk (a son of Erin) seeing it necessary to send the letter, wrote at the bottom, "since writing the above I have died."

ANOTHER AMERICAN TRADES. cently referred to a matter of interest at the World's Fair—the challenge of a celebrated English lock maker named Chubbs, that an American named Hobbs could not open one of his locks before a Committee. By a late letter from B. P. Johnson to the Albany Journal, we learn that on the 22d ult., Mr. Hobbs, in the presence of a committee of English and American gentlemen opened one of Chubbs' locks which was placed on the door of one of the vaults of the State Paper Office of Her Majesty's Government.

The time occupied in opening the lock was 25 minutes, and being challenged to do 10, he relocked it in ten minutes, and this he did without any key, merely using two or three small too's which he took from his vest poolet. The lock in question have the stamp of "Chubbs New Patent." Mr. Johnson remarks that he trusts that the English papers will be satisfied in this case, as in that of the Yankee "Thunder," that it can't Sacred Scenes and Changereng. By Rec.

J. T. Headley.—This work may very properly be considered a companion to the "Sacred Mountains," by the same author. Its object is to il-lightrate and "render more life-life," the sacred writings. It is not the author's design to super-ede the Bible; but his wish is to excite a solicitude to obtain, and to become intimately acquain-ied and perfectly familiar with its history, docrines and laws; to know its truth, to imbibe its pirit, to feel its power, and partake of its salvaon: in a woed, to prize, in some measure, as i deserves, this treasure, which is indeed beyond price. We predict for it a circulation far beyond nny of his former works.— The News, Jan. 7. Sacred Scenes and Characters: By Rev. J.

T. Headley, author of the "Sacred Mountains, Sec. This work will add greatly to the reputa ion of the author. In literary merit, it in leadiey excels in his glowing style and vivid escriptions. His works are a rich treasury of all the sublimity of thought, moving tenderness of passion, and vigorous trength of expression which are to be found in all the languages by which mornals declare their minds, - See Dail

RASHRES AND SKETCHES: By Rev. J. T. dlep. We have not for a long time sat down to a book with more pleasing anticipations, or found those anticipations more fully realized, than in the perusal of the work before as, and we know it will be halled with gratification by the many admirers of the talented author. His "Napoleon and his Marshals," was, perhaps, as popular, and found at least as many enthusiastic readers as any book that can be mentioned. We think the "Rambles and Sketches" are desired to be a support of the s tined to be as popular at least as any of his pre-viously published works. There is not a dull chapter in the work, filled as it is with "an infichapter in the work, thest as it is with "an ini-nite variety. The author has ample room and verge enough for the employment of his fine tal-ents to great advantage; and most successfully has he accomplished the task. The biographical sketch of the author is interesting an I "woll considered," and adds much to the value of the book, which is got up in a very neat and attrective style by the publisher.—Part. Trans Dr. c.15

Mr. Headley is one of the most promising writers of this country, and we have here one of his best books; one on which he can safely rest his fame. It possesses the unfatiguing charms of perfect simplicity and truth. There is a graceful frankness pervading the composition, which engages the interest of the reader in the author as well as in the subject. His rambles about Rome, Paris and London, exhibit a thousand lively traits of an ingenious nature, upon which a man of taste will delight to linger. We predict for this a sale equal to that of any of the author's works.—New York News. ok, which is got up in a very neat and attreet ny of the author's works. - New York News.]. The collection is one of which no author ed be ashamed. It consists, indeed, of some Mr. Headley's most brilliant and highly fin ished compositions; of those specimens of his abilities by which he may be judged with the greatest safety to his fame as a world-painter and thinker,—N. V. Tribonus, Dec. 17.
